- Tackle weeds now and your summer workload will be much reduced. Just take care where you step to avoid any bulbs brave enough to be poking their noses up.
- Prune hybrid tea and shrub roses this month. They will flower on this season's stems so prune them hard, cutting just above a bud and removing all weak, damaged and crossing stems.
- Lily bulbs planted now, in containers, will have plenty of time to grow in preparation for a magnificent display in summer.
- Sow sweet peas - no summer garden is complete without them.
- Pot up your over-wintered dahlia tubers to start them into growth.
- Order Suttons summer bedding plug plants now, taking advantage of the Pick & Mix offers
- Tidy up your pots and containers by gently removing the top few centimetres of soil and replacing with fresh compost.
- Buddleia can be pruned hard this month, cutting right back to a pair of healthy buds.
- Cut back the stems of late-flowering clematis
- Dig over your vegetable patch, removing any perennial weeds
